

June 2010 • Volume 8, Issue 30 • www.ECPmag.com

EYECARE PROFESSIONAL

Kids Issue

Magazine

It's the only Rx eye protector that meets ASTM F803 baseball standards

Can you afford to dispense anything less?

As a professional, it's in your best interests and your patients' to dispense eyewear that meets ASTM F803 sports eyewear standards. In fact, in some states, it's the law.

No Rx eye protector has been robust enough to meet any level of the baseball standard.... until now! Hilco's newly engineered Zoom eyeguard is the first and only Rx eyewear certified to meet the baseball 40 mph standard for 8 years and under.

If you dispense even one eyeguard this year, shouldn't it be the safest available?

Hilco[®]
SMART OPTICAL SOLUTIONS

4. KLIK: denmark

KL-417 is an acetate frame with a fashion forward rectangular eye shape, which is a wardrobe essential for all adolescent frame wearers. Fresh, versatile colors include purple pink, brown, black red and grey and are available in size 49-17-135.

Young frame wearers can revamp their personal style with KL-420, a full rim metal frame with two tone coloring available in aubergine pink, chocolate aqua, red black, and burgundy grey. The fun color combinations allow young fashionistas to boost their fashion smarts with a playful look. The model is available in size 45-17-135.
www.kliik.com

5. REM

The Pop Corn Eyewear collection introduces four fresh frames for Summer. For ages 6-12 years old, these competitively priced eyeglasses feature creative patterns in kid-friendly colors, in shapes that parents will love. The metal fronts with flexible TR90 injected temples combine up-to-the-minute style with good-looking durability and flexibility. The Holly (shown) and the Lonnie are sister and brother, she in pink and he in blue, both with eye catching color-play on the temples.
www.remeyewear.com

6. Revolution

Start your little guy off in the right direction with the Ed Hardy Street Eyewear for Boys. We have six boys styles in the theme of our very popular Ed Hardy Vintage Tattoo Eyewear. Each frame comes with a polarized magnetic clip-on. The temples are silk screened onto leather with the Vintage Tattoos of Don Ed Hardy, The Godfather of Tattoo. Colors available are Black, Cobalt Blue, Gunmetal, Latte, Silver and Pecan.
www.revolutioneyewear.com

